Communities are always changing. This has been especially true in the 4 cities and 6 towns that make up COAST’s service area.

The places that residents, workers, and visitors want to travel to and from have changed, as well as the number of people who travel between these areas. Similarly, the days and hours that people work and shop have also changed.

With all these changes, the time has come for COAST to review our transit system to make sure we are providing the best service to meet customer needs. As part of this process, COAST is performing a “Comprehensive Operation’s Analysis,” or “COA” to determine how service might be improved.

As COAST begins the process of analyzing the system and working on ways to improve service, we will be actively looking for input from YOU and other residents, workers, business owners, and community members like you who have a vested interest in the future of public transit in our area.

Over the next several months, COAST will host a variety of information sessions and workshops to collect your thoughts and feedback to help guide and mold this project. Surveys will also be available online and in the vehicles.

We’re excited to work with you as we envision the future of transit in our communities.
